Normandale receives Xcel Energy Foundation grant

In support of the Academy of Math and Science

Normandale Community College Foundation received a $5,000 grant from Xcel Energy to help fund Normandale’s Academy of Math and Science. The grant will be used to fund scholarships for Normandale students enrolled in the Academy.

“The Xcel Energy Foundation invests in communities we serve and the neighborhoods we live in,” said Xcel Energy Manager of Community and Local Relations Michelle Swanson. “We are proud to support these valuable programs to improve student performance and provide practical business and technical skills. They ensure students can compete effectively in the job market. Normandale’s Academy of Math and Science is a program that includes all of these characteristics.”

The Academy of Math and Science, initiated during the 2006-07 academic year, was created to address the need for a highly qualified workforce in STEM fields. The Normandale Foundation Board of Directors and the college’s administration team crafted an innovative two-year cohort-based program for recruiting and supporting science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) students, especially underrepresented students (students of color, low-income, students of immigrant parents and first-generation college students). The overall success rate for Academy students earning an associate’s degree, transferring to a four-year institution, or re-enrolling in the program is 85%. In total, 78 have transferred to four-year institutions including the University of Minnesota, University of St. Thomas, Minnesota State University–Mankato, and St. Cloud State University, among others. Says Swanson, “We are excited to be able to support the great things (Normandale is) doing for students and the community.”

All funds raised during the 2012 Toast of the Town Challenge go to the Normandale Community College Foundation, which raises money for student scholarships and program support through the Normandale Foundation.

Three student teams are competing in a seriously fun challenge, as the Normandale Community College Foundation launches its fourth annual Toast of the Town Challenge. The teams compete against each other to see who can raise the most money for student scholarships and program support through the Normandale Foundation.

It’s Toast of the Town 2012!

“There is an increasing number of students that need help with the resources required to get their college education,” said Chuck Waletzko, Normandale Foundation executive director.

“Toast of the Town provides a way for people—alumni, parents, staff, area businesses and the Twin Cities community—to make a difference in the lives and futures of these students. We thank them in advance for their participation.”

In 2011, Team smART emerged victorious with the Toast of the Town title and trophy. “Last year all three of our student challenger teams did an amazing job in helping meet our financial goal of raising over $115,000,” said Waletzko.

“Once again, we have an amazing group of students, and with the momentum from last year, we expect to raise $120,000.”

This year’s student teams include Team Music, Team Psyched Up! and Team Service-Learning. The three teams are represented by an enthusiastic group of students and faculty, as well as dedicated staff and Foundation Board members.

The teams will be hosting fundraisers on campus, and for the fourth straight year will hold a seriously fun day of events at Mall of America on October 6, 2012.

New this year: All online donations and gifts made at Mall of America event on October 6 will be matched by The Stonebridge Group of Thrivent Financial. It is a great way to support Normandale and your favorite team as they battle for the title of Toast of the Town.

The winning team will be announced at the Grand Finale on November 1, 2012 in the Kopp Student Center. Tickets are required to attend the event, and can be purchased for $35 per person or $15 for students on the Toast of the Town website or through the Foundation office.

You can support any of the teams in a number of different ways. (Check out the teams and their events at www.NormandaleToastoftheTown.com.) If you are unable to participate in one of the events, please consider supporting a team with a tax deductible online donation or contact the Foundation Office at (952) 358-8147.

Tommy Nehls
Class of 1975

On August 21, 1965, Tommy Nehls went to Bloomington’s legendary Metropolitan Stadium to see the Beatles perform. From that point on, he knew he wanted to play and compose music.

Nehls was looking for a school to pursue his music interests, and he had close friends who had told him great things about Normandale. He enrolled, and studied under instructors Carlo Minnetti, Ona Pinsonneault, Elliot Fine and David Doctor.

Each instructor brought different elements that helped him. “Ona got down to the ‘nuts and bolts’ of music, which I still use every day,” Nehls said. “David taught music history, and really widened everyone’s musical perspective. Carlo demanded serious performance and was a good motivator. Elliot was an applied percussion instructor who related many current ideas on drumming.”

Nehls went on to get a bachelor’s degree in Music Performance from the University of Wisconsin-River Falls. He moved to Reno, Nevada and entered the lounge band scene, joining a group led by Freddy Powers, (who eventually became a songwriter for Merle Haggard). He also met and worked with George Rock (lead singer for Spike Jones) and Ed Easton (lead saxophonist with Harry James).

In the 1990s Nehls composed for Disney, the Weather Channel, PBS and award-winning music for the Miami Heat basketball organization, among others. Nowadays he lives in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, fronting the Tommy Nehls Trio. He has several songs airing on DMX and Music Choice satellite radio. Nehls still appreciates all that he received at Normandale. “The Concert Band was known for its high (level of) performance. Class sizes were also perfect, and you got one-on-one time with the instructors which made for a great environment.”
Pam Balistreri was not sure what to expect when she came to Normandale. She wanted to become a teacher, but knew that with three kids and a part-time job, college was going to be a tough road.

In addition, some of her Elementary Education course requirements were to join the Service-Learning program and to volunteer in the Bloomington School district for two hours a week. “My instructor, Candy Bell, talked me through it, and assured me I could make it work. Her passion for me and the other students was contagious. She talked me into becoming part of the Work Study program, where I would get some of my college credits paid for.” She also ended up working with the Service-Learning program the rest of her time at Normandale.

Balistreri moved on to the Elementary Education program at Minnesota State University-Mankato, taking classes locally at the Edina satellite facility, and graduated with high honors in 2011. She recently accepted a job as a teacher at Rosemount’s Diamond Path Elementary School in June.

“Normandale turned out to be unlike anything I could have imagined,” said Balistreri. “The instructors, staff and students were really a community.”

Team Service-Learning

Team Service-Learning represents a group of programs on campus that incorporate community service with classroom instruction. Service-Learning is a teaching and learning method that connects meaningful community service experiences with academic learning, personal growth and civic responsibility. Through this program, students get a great all-around education while working in partnership with various organizations around the community.

Sandrine Akem, who came to the United States from Cameroon in 2009, is one of the student challengers for Team Service-Learning. An honor student, Akem’s career goal is to become a surgeon. Upon coming to Normandale, she felt she first needed to improve her communication and leadership skills, so she became active in student leadership activities as well as a variety of Service-Learning projects.

Through Service-Learning, Akem has participated in blood drives, overseen clothing and food donation collections, helped out at homeless shelters and with many other community events. Akem, whose brother Bernard participated in the 2011 Toast of the Town Challenge, has begun to appreciate not only the skill sets she is gaining, but also the opportunity to become a leader who is able to inspire others to participate.

“Students take part in community service for different reasons, but whatever it is, it is a step towards giving back to the community,” said Akem. “Being part of Service-Learning has allowed me to experience new things. I have friends who have come with me to community events, and enjoyed the experience so much they come back regularly.”

Team Service-Learning’s other spokesman is Simon Samere. Prior to coming to Normandale, Samere owned a small auto repair shop. He grew weary of the long hours involved in working his business, and decided to enroll at Normandale to pursue an associate’s degree.

Samere believes his biggest accomplishment as a Normandale student happened outside of the classroom, working as an AmeriCorps volunteer. He originally decided to join AmeriCorps to get more out of his college experience and to broaden his horizons. The experience taught him to value volunteer service—the people he served, as well as his fellow volunteers.

Samere’s passion for helping others extends to his work as a guardian ad litem for Hennepin County, where he serves as an advocate for abused and neglected children. He says he sees real-life situations that have opened his eyes, and now appreciates things he once took for granted.

After earning his Normandale degree this academic year, Samere plans to transfer to the University of Minnesota to complete his bachelor’s degree in Economics and then go to law school. His long-term goal is to work in immigration law. He is looking forward to participating in the Toast of the Town Challenge, in large part to bring a greater appreciation to his fellow students about Normandale.

“Normandale has meant the world to me,” said Samere. “Knowing that this place is my first link to accomplishing my long-term goals has made me more determined to complete my education and make a difference.”
Ruth Schiller
Class of 1987

Ruth Schiller has a long association with Normandale, in different capacities. She started off as a student in 1984, became a part-time teacher in the Psychology department in 1991 and has held a permanent position there since 2001. Schiller originally started college when she was younger, but had to leave to take care of her mother. She then got married and had six children, and because of her busy schedule did not decide to come back to college until she was 40 years old. Schiller enrolled in two classes at Normandale initially, and kept going from there.

“I had a wonderful time at Normandale as a student,” said Schiller. “I thought it was a high-quality education, very stimulating and there were a lot of opportunities to do things outside of class that were very enriching.”

She attended Normandale for three years, and transferred to the University of Minnesota where she earned her bachelor’s degree. Schiller went on to receive a master’s in Philosophy and a PhD in Educational Psychology.

Schiller always enjoyed the quality of instructors at Normandale both as a student and as a teacher. She has come to appreciate it even more as an instructor in the Psychology Department.

“The thing that makes the Psychology Department so great to work in is the collegiality,” said Schiller. “We really like working and sharing ideas with each other.”

Team Psyched Up!

Team Psyched Up! represents the Psychology Department, which encourages their students to closely examine the scientific inquiry into human behavior and mental processes. The department provides a solid foundation in core psychological areas and offers a rigorous education that provides learning opportunities on multiple levels. It is the department’s (and team’s) belief that one of the keys to success is a healthy state of mind. The students enrolled in classes through the Psychology department hope to enter fields where they can help people achieve and maintain sound mental health.

A.J. Anderson is part of a growing population of military veterans attending Normandale. Anderson is the president of the Veterans Resource Center on campus and has been an advocate of expanding programs on campus for returning vets since returning from active combat duty in 2009. He is a fifth-generation member of the military, whose family members have faithfully served their country in every major conflict over the past two centuries.

Anderson is currently on a social work career track, planning to transfer to a four-year college and eventually get his master’s degree so he can be a social worker at a Veteran Affairs facility. Upon arriving at Normandale in 2009, he remembers meeting the former Veterans Resource Center president Jeremy Wolfsteller (who was a 2010 Toast of the Town Student Challenger) in a small office near the college’s main entrance. Since that time, Anderson has noticed that the college’s services for veterans have improved considerably. The relocation of the Veterans Resource Center to an expanded and more suitable space is one of many examples. “It is great to see the steps Normandale is taking to become an even more vet-friendly school,” said Anderson. “We are getting more veterans coming here, and it is important to have the resources available to them to help their transition in starting school again.”

Samantha Olson is another student challenger for Team Psyched Up! Olson followed her older brother’s footsteps in coming to Normandale, and credits the faculty for making her feel very comfortable from the time she first arrived. During the spring semester of 2012, she took advantage of what she felt was an “amazing” opportunity to be part of a new class offered by instructors Jay Anderson and Andy Tix, “The Psychology of the Holocaust.” Finding the course “tough, but rewarding,” Olson says the experience provided her an opportunity to reflect on the gifts she could bring to others by choosing a career as a psychology professional.

Olson sees the Toast of the Town Challenge as a way to give back to students as well as gain recognition for the Psychology department, and is excited to participate.

“It’s a cool way to raise scholarship funding for students in need,” said Olson. “The events also give more visibility to Normandale and the Psychology department. I want people to know we are more than just learning about (renowned psychologist Sigmund) Freud.”
DEAR ALUMNI AND FRIENDS,

At the heart of Normandale is community. According to the Merriam-Webster Dictionary, the definition of community is “a unified body of individuals.” Normandale faculty and staff are unified in the college’s mission of advancing an individual’s intellectual, career, and personal development by providing outstanding teaching and support. With leadership from President Joe Opatz and his cabinet, Normandale is providing not only quality education but outstanding support services and state-of-the-art facilities to help students succeed.

Normandale alumni are united in their appreciation of the quality education they received. I regularly hear stories from alumni about instructors who made a strong impact on their lives and careers. In thanks, they give back to their alma mater through volunteer activities and financial support. But most of all, we celebrate you, our community of donors. Your dedication and financial support has enabled the Normandale Foundation to provide hundreds of scholarships.

You helped a woman who escaped domestic abuse become empowered with education; a young man who, after dropping out of high school, decided that a college education would create a brighter future for himself and his fiancée; a single parent who wishes to provide a better life for her family and show her children the importance of education; and so many others.

Community… unity…it is because we come together in our passion to help students achieve their dream of a college education. You have chosen to invest in their future, and in so doing you have invested in the future of our state, our country and our world. Thank you for providing our students with a quality education and making a brighter future for us all.

Serving students through your generosity,

S	arted by Richfield school employees, Richfield Bloomington Credit Union has a great history of support in the community. That support is evident in their fruitful partnership with Normandale Community College since 2004.

RBCU annually donates two $1,000 scholarships to Normandale students, and has been a sponsor of Normandale’s Toast of the Town Challenge in all four years of the event’s existence. Education has always been at the forefront of RBCU’s philanthropic mission, and its support for Normandale has come naturally because of the college’s positive impact on the community.

Normandale’s impact in the community that both institutions serve is evident in the fact that the college now enrolls over 15,000 students a year. A large number of those students come from Bloomington and Richfield, which are two of RBCU’s main service areas. “We always look to do what we can to be part of the community and support it,” said RBCU’s Assistant Vice President of Marketing Andre Thibault. “We feel like education strengthens and provides a foundation for a good community, and that is a big reason we support the efforts of educational institutions.”

When you attend major community events in Bloomington you will usually see the presence of Normandale and RBCU. Both entities are highly committed to working with community and charitable organizations in the city to make it a better place, and Normandale and RBCU agree regarding the major role that education plays in accomplishing that goal.

“We are always looking for ways to improve the quality of life for our members,” said Thibault. “We believe that education is at the forefront of those efforts. Education is one of the reasons for the initial existence of our organization and we will continue to make it a priority in the communities we serve.”

Corporate donors such as RBCU provide needed annual support. This partnership is an investment in our community’s future. With education as the common thread, together we will build a strong community. Normandale Foundation is grateful to all donors, both corporate and individual, in partnering for a brighter future for our students and community.

Richfield Bloomington Credit Union: Partners for a brighter future
HIGHLIGHTS: FISCAL YEAR 2011-2012*

FOUNDATION EVENTS

- The third annual Toast of the Town exceeded expectations and goals, raising $115,408 for the Normandale Fund. Team Leadership: Team STEM, and Team smART took campus participation to a whole new level. In the end, Team smART was crowned the winner, raising the most donations by facilitating a tile mural, glass pendant workshops, and tape sculpture activities.

- The Foundation co-sponsored Success Day, a campus-wide event to engage students, staff, and the community in defining and supporting “success.” Faculty, staff, community and Foundation Board members presented workshops that included achieving goals, creating balance, and exploring something new.

- Through support from partnerships and sponsorships, Normandale’s Dental Hygiene Department presented a day-long symposium on evidence-based decision making which focused on a team approach to improving patient oral health through practice-based research.

- Normandale’s Japanese Garden Committee received a special commendation from Japan for its dedication and work with cherry trees. The “Spring Wonder” cherry tree growing in the Garden was specifically developed and cultivated to withstand Minnesota winters. The cherry blossom tree is a symbol of life in Japan, and “of how short and fragile life is, and how important it is to make the most of every moment,” to quote Gail Wong, past president of the Japanese Garden committee (more on page 19).

PROGRAMS AND ACTIVITIES

- The Academy of Math and Science completed its fifth year, making a difference in the lives of 148 students since its inception. The Academy was named a finalist for a Tekne Award in the Innovative Collaboration of the Year category by the Minnesota High Tech Association.

- Through a grant from Donaldson Company, Inc., new equipment for the Fabrication Laboratory, including Laser Engraver accessories, Vinyl Cutter, and Fume Extractor will enhance existing pre-engineering courses to even better prepare students for the engineering design work of upper-level courses.

- To equip students with the skills, technology, and knowledge needed to live and work, $12,168 was given to the college for student success and technology initiatives. To help fulfill our charitable mission, an additional $5,000 was also given to the college for its use toward “the greatest need.”

- The Normandale Hospitality Management Club has partnered with the Foundation to assist at events including the Toast of the Town Grand Finale, Bloomington Chamber Breakfast meeting, and the Scholarship and Donor Recognition Ceremony. Students gain real-world experience on how food service operations work and valuable insight into their industry as well as form networking relationships with peers and area organizations.

SCHOLARSHIPS

- “Creating Brighter Futures” was the theme of this year’s Scholarship and Donor Recognition Event. Each donor and scholar recipient was engraved a flashlight key ring in recognition of their generosity and achievement for improving lives through education.

- Scholarship support rose by 18% over the previous year due to a number of new partnerships and initiatives:
  - Three Normandale students were awarded the Patrick Porter Scholarship, administered through the Education Foundation of Bloomington, based on

- their academic excellence, community service, and school involvement.

- As a result of their Toast of the Town success, Team smART established the Felicity Abby Jane Matthews Memorial Scholarship (more on page 18) for all students pursuing their Associate in Fine Arts degree.

- Other newly-established scholarships included the Kevin Downey Memorial, Normandale Institute of Business and Economics, Returned Peace Corp Volunteers and Friends, Global Studies Scholarships and the Mark Weiler World Citizen Award.

FELICITY MATHEIU

Felicity Abby Jane Mathieu, 27, of Hartland, Minnesota tragically died Wednesday, February 1, 2012. Felicity (Lissy) was born October 13, 1984 in Mitchell, South Dakota. With her family, she moved to Akita, Japan at age 5, attended Kauzoe Elementary School from kindergarten through 4th grade and became fluent in Japanese. After the family returned to Minnesota, Felicity graduated from Prior Lake-Savage High School, and went on to earn her associate’s degree from Normandale in 2006. For several years she served as a special education paraprofessional educator. Felicity graduated cum laude posthumously from Walden University in August 2012, with specializations in non-profit management and women’s studies.

A scholarship has been established in Mathieiu’s memory with the Normandale Foundation for students pursuing an art degree. Her father, David Mathieu, served as Normandale’s vice president of academic affairs from 1998 to 2006.

JAMES HARDING

James R. Harding, 57, of Park Rapids, Minnesota passed away on August 5, 2012. Harding, who was inducted into the National Junior College Association of America (NJCAA) Football Hall of Fame in 2006, was Minnesota’s first NJCAA First-Team All-American Offensive Player. The two-time Minnesota Community College Southern Division All-Conference player helped lead the 1974 Normandale football team to a 9-0-1 record, the Mid-American (JUCO) Bowl Championship and the nation’s No. 2 ranking. Harding graduated from Normandale in 1974 and transferred to North Dakota State, which won consecutive North Central Conference Championships in 1975 and 1976 and appeared in bowl games in both seasons. Harding had worked in banking and finance since 1978.

“Jim was such a great guy both on and off the football field. He had a great sense of humor and a wonderful laugh,” said Gail Anderson Cywinski, retired associate dean of students.

Normandale and Japanese Garden Committee receives commendation for “Spring Wonder” cherry tree

On June 2, Normandale graduates J.R. Uyson and the former Kate Kosse had their wedding ceremony in the Japanese Garden and reception in the adjacent Kopp Student Center. The first wedding event held there since the remodeling.

“We just loved how Normandale feels like home and has helped us in growing and taking steps in our lives,” said Kate. “When we saw the space and thought about the location for our guests, it seemed like a great combination,” J.R. added. “I also thought the food that Lancer made was very high quality. What really helped us out was the staff. They had a tech services representative on site, and they really helped us out was the staff. They had a tech services representative on site, and Gloria (Robinson) and Joe (Poell) also helped make the night great for us.”

All spoke as part of the ceremony. Many of the Japanese Garden Committee members and supporters past and present were in attendance. The Japanese Garden Committee and the college also presented Deputy Consul General Sawada with a gift of a beautiful framed picture of the Garden and its cherry tree blossoms.

The Japanese Garden’s cherry blossom tree (“Spring Wonder,” Sargent Cherry Tree, Prunus sargentii, Hokkaido Normandale”) is the result of an original seed sent as a gift in friendship in 1984 from Japan to Washington D.C. Bred to survive harder climates, it was finally introduced to the nursery market in 2010. A five-week celebration took place in Washington D.C. in the spring of 2012 for the centennial of the cherry blossom trees in the U.S.

On June 2, Normandale graduates J.R. Uyson and the former Kate Kosse had their wedding ceremony in the Japanese Garden and reception in the adjacent Kopp Student Center. The first wedding event held there since the remodeling. “We just loved how Normandale feels like home and has helped us in growing and taking steps in our lives,” said Kate. “When we saw the space and thought about the location for our guests, it seemed like a great combination,” J.R. added. “I also thought the food that Lancer made was very high quality.
